

INTRODUCING THE SINGLEHOP
BILL OF RIGHTS

THE HOSTING INDUSTRY'S FIRST CUSTOMER BILL OF RIGHTS

SEE WHY IT'S BETTER

Denver Mayor carries out Broncos-Patriots wager

5:26 AM, Jan 16, 2012 | 4 comments

AdChoices

Send Large Files Instantly

TRY IT FREE!
30 Day Free Trial

 ShareFile
by citrix

Recommend Tweet 0 0

Written by Lori Obert

FILED UNDER

- Local News
- Sports
- Weekend Stories
- News
- As Seen on 9NEWS
- NFL

DENVER - It was tough enough for Denver Mayor Michael Hancock to watch his city's team go down to the New England patriots Saturday night. The day after wasn't much easier.

Hancock fulfilled his Broncos-Patriots wager with Boston Mayor Tom Menino Sunday by wearing Patriots quarterback Tom Brady's #12 jersey in public and also getting some of Colorado's finest beef for Menino.

"As a stalwart Broncos fan, it was certainly not easy to put on that jersey, but it was well worth the wager to support such an outstanding season," Mayor Hancock said in a press release Sunday. "The City of Denver was proud to come together to support our team. The Broncos gave us an exciting season and a dramatic playoff victory, and we can't wait for next season."

Hancock also got a 40-pound combination pack of Arvada's Ralston Valley Beef to send to Menino.

(KUSA-TV © 2012 Multimedia Holdings Corporation)

MOST VIEWED ARTICLES

-  Report: Missing toddler thrown in Dumpster
-  Kyle Dyer returns to 9NEWS on Monday
-  Denver Colorado Weather Forecast
-  What was that light in the sky over the Front Range?
-  Lower North Fork Fire destroys 27 homes, burns 4,140 acres; 2 people found dead, 1 missing; 70 percent contained; some allowed to return home

SEE MORE

MOST WATCHED VIDEOS

-  Littleton man missing for 10 days in Nevada found alive
-  Delivering one last gift
-  What was that light in the sky over the Front Range?
-  Soldier surprises daughter during school's game show
-  Dashcam video released of police